Matthew Brown Companies and its' Agnostic Investment Thesis with a Focus on United Nations Sustainable Development Goals

Austin, Texas, November 19, 2017 - Matthew Brown Companies, a Texas-based venture capital firm, is proud to announce its agnostic investment thesis with a strong emphasis on supporting the United Nations Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs). The firm's commitment to investing in companies aligned with the SDGs reflects its dedication to driving positive social, economic and environmental change on a global scale.

As an agnostic investment firm, Matthew Brown Companies remains open to diverse investment opportunities across various sectors. Its unique approach focuses on identifying innovative startups and early-stage companies that address one or more of the 17 SDGs outlined by the United Nations. By combining financial returns with a strong commitment to social impact, the firm aims to create a lasting positive influence on society while generating long-term value for its investors.

Matthew Brown Companies recognizes the urgency and significance of the SDGs in addressing some of the world's most pressing challenges, including poverty, inequality, climate change, and sustainable development. Through its investments, the firm aims to support groundbreaking solutions that promote renewable energy, responsible consumption, gender equality, clean technology, education, healthcare and more. By actively engaging with portfolio companies, the firm strives to foster their growth, provide strategic guidance and amplify their impact on the SDGs.

Matthew Brown Companies's commitment to the United Nations SDGs aligns with its vision of a sustainable and inclusive future. By deploying capital, expertise, and networks, the firm seeks to empower entrepreneurs and innovators who are working towards a better world. Through its investments, Matthew Brown Companies aims to contribute to the global movement of achieving the SDGs by 2030 and creating a positive legacy for generations to come.
